THE HOLY CARPET.

The Moslem Pilgrimage to Mecca.

The 30,000 Pilgrims Will Probably Face About on Account of a Telegraph Wire.

CAIRO, July 11.—In all likelihood the sacred caravan now on its way to Mecca will be obliged to return to Cairo, as an accident has happened to the Holy Carpet and the Mahul through striking a telegraph wire. As such a mishap seems to furnish a ridiculously inadequate reason for the retrograde movement of some 30,000 pilgrims, with their 45,000 camels, a description of the Mahul and an account of reasons for the sacred caravan's return will be found interesting.

The Korah promises full absolution for past sins and a very great compensation in the world to come, to those of the faithful who make the pilgrimage to the holy shrine of the prophet at Mecca, and those of them that die on their way to or from the holy city or during their stay there, are promised everlasting youth and vigor on the Mountain of Pilaf, where forty beautiful hours will ever attend to their wants. Believing that they have prospects in store, thousands of Moslems flock annually to Mecca, especially those who have passed the prime of life. The international quarantine established by the European powers to stop the spread of diseases such as cholera, typhus and the plague, which as a rule generate at Mecca during the Balm, publish statistics of the worshippers, and for the last ten years they have averaged nearly 300,000. These come from Turkey, Persia, Afghanistan, Kurdistan, Tartary, China, India, Russia, Tripoli, Zanzibar, and from all points of Africa and Asia. Previous to the building of the Suez Canal, the grand caravan, as it is called, was enormous, and although very formidable, yet the majority of the pilgrims go by sea to Jiddah, the nearest point to Mecca on the Arabian side of the Red Sea. Any Christian found within the walls of Mecca is instantly put to death, and had it not been for Professor Vamley and Captain Burton, who visited the city disguised as Imams, or Turkish priests, after studying the language and religion of the people thoroughly, nothing would have been known of the Meccan proceedings during the Kourban Balm. Women are also prohibited from approaching the shrine of the Prophet, under the penalty of being stoned to death; and so some attempts have been made by women to enter the city, precautions are now taken which render such a calamity impossible. One woman, however, did enter—the Saracene Sultana named Pearl-Dush—not however disguised, as she was accompanied by 50,000 warriors, determined to force her way, had not the Grand Sherief opened the gates for her to enter. Since then the Holy Mahul or litter in which the Princess journeyed to Mecca is taken to the holy city and back every year, as representing the female population, who, being forbidden to worship in person, send the Mahul as their representative. This sacred litter is now several hundred years old, and no doubt that very little of the original material of which it was made exists. It is, however, kept in splendid repair, and besides being studded with precious stones of immense value, is covered with gold and other valuable ornaments, which the faithful attach to it as offerings. It has been in the keeping of the family named Sheikh-el-Gamel ever since its first journey. The representative of this family not only guards it on its return from the pilgrimage, but actually accompanies it year after year on its dreary voyage through the desert. The Sheikh-el-Gamels have always given signs of insanity, and are for this reason esteemed saints by Mohammedans. Anybody passing a week in Cairo is sure to meet at least one of them.

The holy litter now, instead of containing a woman, carries the Holy Carpet, which is sent regularly to Cairo by the Sultan from Constantinople, and on its arrival is received with great honors. It is taken to the Alabaster Mosque of the Citadel, and there embroidered in gold by the women, who consider this equivalent to visiting Mecca, as the tomb of Mohammed will for one whole year be covered with this carpet, which will be returned to Cairo when the next one is sent. While this embroidery is going on no man is allowed within the mosque, or even within the citadel, as the women work with uncovered faces, whereas on other occasions they are always hidden in a veil. Upon the decorations being completed, the carpet is sent to the Cairo palace of the Khedive, and the fills it with treasure as an offering to the shrine of the Prophet, but in reality as an annual subsidy to the Grand Sherief and clergy of Mecca. Having filled the carpet, the Khedive affixes his great seal to it, so that nobody may disturb the contents, the value of which he keeps secret. The carpet thus loaded and sealed is handed to the Sheikh-el-Gamel, who is responsible for its delivery into the hands of the Grand Sherief. In the present case the seals of the holy carpet having been broken through the upsetting of the camel's keeper, knowing what kind of a reception he would meet with if he presented himself before the Grand Sherief carrying a carpet containing unknown treasure with broken seals, has deemed it prudent to return to Cairo and have new seals applied to his charge after its contents had been verified by the Khedive.

All accidents to the grand caravan are considered as forerunners of ill-luck, but when an accident happens to the Holy Carpet and to the Mahul itself, the faithful believe that a great calamity is in store for them. In this case matters become more serious through the great delay, which may prevent the pilgrims from reaching Mecca before the fete day.

Speed of a Narrow Gauge.

DENVER, July 11.—An experimental trip has been made on the Denver & Rio Grande to ascertain whether a rate of speed can be obtained on a narrow gauge railroad to correspond with that on broad gauges. A theory has been held that only a very moderate speed could with safety be made over narrow gauge roads, and it is a fact that trains on such roads are generally slower. Twenty miles an hour is considered a good rate for the narrow gauge, while that would be slow for the broad gauge. But on the trial trip mentioned on the Denver line, forty-six miles were made in fifty-nine minutes, and the first half of the distance was run at the rate of nearly a mile a minute. Although this proves the ability to attain a rate of speed on such roads much faster than that usually run, of course one trip demonstrates nothing about the comparative safety of such a rate of going.

THE LAST OF THE PURCELLS.

The Dead Archbishop's Solemn Requiem in His Own Cathedral.

CINCINNATI, July 11.—The crush at the Cathedral gates was simply awful. Inside the church the audience sat silently awaiting the commencement of the ceremonies. It was pre-eminently a solemn congregation, impressed with the mournful character of the occasion. No flippancy was seen, which, considering the size of the audience, was remarkable. Not a light word was spoken, but the demeanor of all was in fit keeping with the pervading air of holy awe at the presence of death.

The candles burned with a mellow light at either side of the body, and an altar would emerge from the door at the right side of the altar, and kneel beside the coffin, utter a silent prayer, and then returning pass through the door. The rites were impressive to the last degree. The sacrist was crowned with fine-looking priests attired in cassock and surplice, against which the rich purple robes of the Bishops contrasted in gorgeous color.

The brilliantly-lighted altar with the pillars, the candlesticks, the surrounding pictures and the cross above draped in folds of somber black, and the sad-faced audience dressed in becoming attire of subdued colors, and above all in interest, the cold still form of the dead prelate lying in state in a coffin in the very church whose echoes had so often been awakened by the music of his eloquence and the earnestness of his pleadings with an unspeakable degree with the solemnity of the hour.

The Requiem High Mass was performed in a most impressive manner, with Archbishop-elect Ester as Pontifex.

The following dignitaries of the Church were in attendance:

Archbishop M. Corrigan, Conductor to the Cardinal Archbishop of New York; Archbishop Williams, of Boston; Archbishop Gibbons, of Baltimore; Archbishop-elect Elder. Of Bishops outside the province, Bishop Ryan, of St. Louis; Bishop Conroy, of Albany; Bishop Baltes, of Alton; Bishop Fitzgerald, of Little Rock; Bishop O'Connor, of Omaha; Bishop Gallagher, of Denver. Of the province, Bishop Gilmore, of Cleveland; Bishop Borgess, of Detroit; Bishop Toebbe, of Covington; Bishop Chataud, of Vincennes; Bishop Watterson, of Columbus; Bishop Richter, of Grand Rapids; Bishop Rademacher, of Nashville.

Among the foreign priests in attendance was the venerable Father Durbin, who was Master of Ceremonies at the consecration of Archbishop Purcell's predecessor, Bishop Fenwick.

The remains of the deceased Archbishop were conducted to the depot by a large concourse of people, most in the uniforms of the many Catholic orders of the city. Thence they were taken to St. Martin's, Brown county for burial.

With the death of the Archbishop the family of the Mallow nailmaker become extinct. The father died at Mallow shortly after the great famine of 1846-7, and the mother and her two daughters then came to Cincinnati. Mrs. Purcell and her daughter Katie went to Martinsville, Brown county, Ohio, close to the Ursuline Convent, where they lived with Mrs. Carr. Mrs. Purcell was here when she received the title of Countess from the Pope. She died there April 15, 1857, in her ninety-second year. Kate before this came to Cincinnati, and died at the Orphan Asylum at Cummins-ville, March 11, 1879. She was buried by the side of her mother in Ursuline graveyard, in Brown county, and she was followed one year later by her brother Edward. Margaret Purcell married a Mr. Pugh, and removed with him to New Orleans, where her brother Edward practiced law for a short time. She died childless a few years before the war.

RAILROAD ENTERPRISE.

The Three Americas Railroad Project

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—The Huntington, or California syndicate is building, with all possible dispatch, a railroad from Eagle Pass, on the Rio Grande, to the City of Mexico, which will be opened in connection with the Southern Pacific.

The same syndicate is said to have purchased the existing railroads in Guatemala, one of the leading States of Central America, and proposes to construct other roads and extensions into the adjoining Central American Republics of Honduras and Nicaragua. The inducement for this action is found in the richness of those State in mines, timber and tropical fruits and their accessibility by means of the numerous vessels which ply between New Orleans and the Central American ports.

The profits to be derived from these distant railways are large, and it will not be long before there will be one or more lines connecting the City of Mexico with the railway system of Central America. So the good work will go on, and road after road will be built until the rails are pushed across the Isthmus of Panama into South America, and at last the gigantic project of a Three Americas Railway will be accomplished.

THE IRISH TENANTRY.

Impoverished By Excessive Rent They Want to Emigrate.

How Trinity College Oppresses the Town of Cahirciveen—Valuation Less Than Half the Rental.

DUBLIN, July 11.—Ireland was very much stirred, and it is yet, over the cable report of the action of the United States Government in regard to the emigrants who had arrived at New York in one of the Anchor Line steamers, from Cahirciveen, County Kerry. Whether right or wrong, prudent or imprudent, wise or unwise, the people are very much opposed to the large numbers of emigrants that are being "assisted" by the Government out of the country. The leaders declare it a scheme to depopulate the country, to root out the Celt to make room for the Saxon. Their claim is that it is shifting of responsibility. Instead of England legislating to relieve the people and to aid them to earn a livelihood in their native country, she conceals schemes to shift a load of paupers of her own creation on to the United States.

The news from New York has caused great rejoicing. All the politicians look upon it as a slap in the face for England from the American Government. One leading journal, the Evening Telegraph, of Dublin, an adjunct issue of the morning Freeman's Journal, declared editorially that the act was an important one, showing the influence of the Irish in America on the politics of that country. It does not for one moment seem to think the step was one of those prudent motions made on purely self-protective grounds. It seems to ignore that the United States could not act from the high motives of the intrinsic principles at issue.

Everything is attributed to the influence of the Irish vote in America. Of course, as thus much has been accomplished in behalf of the policy of the Irish leaders by the Irish colony in America, much more may be hoped for. Now that this influence has received official governmental cognizance, it is inevitable that whatever else—not too compromising to the United States—that the Nationalists may desire, can be had through Mr. Sullivan, of the National League in America.

Such rot as this can do the Irish no good in the way of appeasing England, nor will it be likely to encourage the authorities of America. Just let me say that the cause of the poor people of Ireland is a grand one, but it is the worst led and pleaded that one can imagine. Every day the leaders stultify themselves. Parnell certainly is very prudent, but he cannot undertake to account for the good behavior of the hundreds of ambitious patriots who are furnishing for glory.

Now, what are the facts in regard to this emigration business?

I have just been talking to a poor-law guardian of a union near Cahirciveen. He says that he is well acquainted with the system of emigration. He is one of the secretaries of the National League and spends much of his time in Dublin at present. He is "violently" opposed to this depopulating system, draining the country of its best men, and leaving the maimed, the halt and the blind to be cared for in the work house.

He tells me that in August, 1881, about forty tenants and their families were evicted from the estate of Sir Rowland Wynn, uncle of Lord Hensley. They all went to the work house. The law does not allow relief to be given to a family who may not be paupers, but who are just for the present out of work and barren of resources. The whole family must go to the work house. Thither these people went in August, 1881. Some little time after, when "times picked up," many of them went back to their holdings. They were not able, however, to meet the exorbitant rents, and again they were evicted and turned right out on the roadside. They again resorted to the workhouse. It is these people that have recently been shipped away to New York by the Government.

I have before me a tabular statement of the rent as demanded by the corporation of Cahirciveen, an endowed estate of Trinity College, and the valuation, as ascertained by Government officials. In scarcely a single case is the rent less than 250 per cent. more than the Government valuation. I cite just a half dozen taken at random: Rent, £22 10s., valuation, £9 16s.; rent, £4 4s., valuation, £1 15s.; rent, £16 16s., valuation, £6; rent, £5 4s., valuation, £1 11s.; rent, £23 2s., valuation, £11 8s.; rent, £26 6s., valuation, £9 16s.; rent, £17 15s., valuation, £6 10s. These tenants, of course, by hundreds plead to be allowed to emigrate.

A VIOLENT MANIAC.

He Smashes Furniture and Uses a Pistol With Fatal Effect.

DES MOINES, July 11.—A man who had apparently alighted from the Rock Island train going west, registered his name at the Morgan House, near the station, as Henry Seager, of Swana, N. Y. He paid for his room, and went thither at once. About 4:30 o'clock a boarder heard the cry of murder, and called the landlord. The latter hurried to Seager's room, and found the door barricaded with the bed. Seager fired a shot at the landlord, and he fled. Other shots were fired, one of which carried off the doorplate, and following in quick succession until thirteen had been fired through the door and wall, several of which scarred the wall across the narrow hall. Seager then demolished the furniture of his room, and did the same in several adjoining rooms, and threw his money, a considerable amount, into the gathering crowd below. He then had a collision with a boarder named Joseph Holmes in a room at the end of the hall, but breaking away from Holmes he escaped to the roof of the wing to the building. Holmes followed, and while trying to grab Seager, he was felled by a blow from a bottle in the maniac's hand, a bad gash being inflicted on his head.

By this time five policemen had reached the roof. A shot was fired, whether by Holmes or Seager is not certain, but it took effect in one of Seager's legs, and he partly fell. In staggering Seager fired again, aiming at the center of his forehead. He was then overpowered and taken to the City Hospital, where his wounds were dressed. Seager's skull was crushed by the ball aimed at his forehead, and the bullet that entered his thigh is thought by the doctors to have entered his body. They consider his case fatal. He seems to be a mechanic or laborer. His luggage consisted of a pair of shoes, and inside his hatband was written the name of Mary Frew.

THE SOUTHERN NEGRO.

They Are the Grogshops Militate Against His Advancement.

NEW YORK, July 11.—In conversation with the Rev. J. W. Beckwith, Bishop of Georgia, now in the city, he said in regard to the negroes of the South:

"The greatest drawback," is to be found upon the rice plantations. There the negroes are the most wild, and there they are less susceptible to the civilizing influence of the whites. The trouble there is the grog-shops. At every cross-roads where there is a plantation you will see a little shanty where whisky is dispensed. There the negroes who work hard for six days will spend all their week's earnings for liquor. There they congregated all day Sunday, and it demoralizes them. As far as that is concerned, liquor is the great curse to civilization everywhere. I believe in controlling it by a system of high taxation. It is the best plan in the world to control the traffic. I have studied the question for years, and I am convinced that you can not stop men from drinking liquor when they want to drink it by prohibitory legislation. This has been proved. But take away the temptation as much as possible from the young. Let them be taught to know the value of abstaining from alcoholic liquor. Every time that you close a saloon by high taxation on the public streets you remove a temptation from the young. I believe that those who have grown old and are addicted to the cup will drink anyhow. Let them go on and burn up, but save the young by keeping the temptation of the streets from them. It is the only way to fight the traffic. We must let the church get control of the young and thus guide them in the path of true temperance. We are doing vast good among the negroes through the churches in the South. The Methodists have a large institution in Georgia for educating colored preachers, and we have a similar one in North Carolina. At the next Convention, to be held in October, something will be done in this direction. The last of this month there will be a conference of Southern Episcopal Bishops at the Swannoe University in Tennessee, to consider the best methods to further the church among the negroes. I have in my diocese three or four more negro church schools, two missions, and one parish; but my theory is that there is not so much to be done through the parishes as in the schools. There we can get the young and educate them, and get them divorced from the superstitions of the plantations."

Such rot as this can do the Irish no good in the way of appeasing England, nor will it be likely to encourage the authorities of America. Just let me say that the cause of the poor people of Ireland is a grand one, but it is the worst led and pleaded that one can imagine. Every day the leaders stultify themselves. Cetewayo Has Obtained a Victory at Last.

Cholera and Starvation Hand in Hand—A French Admiral Imprisons an English Consul—Other High Handed Measures—Returned Paupers.

MADAGASCAR.

LONDON, July 11.—Mr. Gladstone announced in the House of Parliament that he had received a telegram from Madagascar, stating that the Admiral in command of the French fleet at that point had proclaimed a state of siege and ordered the British Consul to quit the island inside of twenty-four hours. The Admiral then proceeded to place the Consul Secretary under arrest.

These high-handed measures so excited the Consul that he was immediately stricken down and died. The French Admiral has also stopped communication between vessels in port and arriving, and ordered the flags of all foreign Consuls to be hauled down, and Missionary Shaw to be placed under arrest for communicating with the enemy. Mr. Gladstone further stated that his Government had already sent a communication to the French Government on this subject.

AFRICA.

LONDON, July 11.—Reports received here this morning from South Africa state that a great battle has been fought between the forces of King Cetewayo and those of the powerful Chief Oham. The latter was taken prisoner.

CAPE TOWN, July 11.—The Transvaal Volksraad has dismissed Jorissen from his post as Attorney General.

ALEXANDRIA, July 11.—The deaths resulting from cholera are as follows: Danietta, 52; Mansurah, 102, and Samanoud, 16, Tanish, 8.

ALEXANDRIA, July 11.—A meeting of bankers and merchants was held to consider the difficulties growing out of the cholera epidemic. It was decided to appoint a committee to appeal to the Khedive for permission to allow provisions to pass the cordon at Mansourah, where the people are known to be starving.

ENGLAND.

LONDON, July 11.—The Rev. A. K. H. Boyd, D.D., Dean of Exeter, is dead.

LONDON, July 11.—Although the Joint Committee of the House of Lords and the Commons rejected the Marquis of Lansdown's report in favor of a tunnel under the English Channel, a majority of the Committee differed so much relative to their reasons for voting against it that they refrain from presenting any collective statement of their views to Parliament.

Pauper emigrants who returned to Ireland by order of the American authorities on the steamer Furnessia and Spain, were landed at Queenstown. All accounts agree in describing them as a wretched class of people. One family, consisting of a man and his wife and five children, were left lying on the wharf for three hours before the officials, who had not been advised of their coming, provided for their wants.

ITALY.

ROME, July 11.—The Italian Government has directed the construction of two more monster ironclads, for the building of which contracts will be made at once.

FRANCE.

PARIS, July 11.—In the Chamber of Deputies M. Challemel Lacour, the condition of affairs in Cochinchina being under discussion, said that the Government was entirely satisfied with the situation, and that the number of troops at Tonquin was quite sufficient for present exigencies. Should fresh and unexpected difficulties arise, the Government would at once reconvene the Chambers, although there was no likelihood that such a course would become necessary, for the French could have no other policy on the Peninsula but to fight. It would be necessary for Admiral Tudeau to occupy the Tonquin Delta at any cost, as a matter of precaution, and for the safety both of the troops and the fleet, but the Government could positively say that it did not and never had intended to attempt the conquest of Annam.

At Yankton, Dak., a hail storm destroyed 5,000 acres of growing crops in Bon Homme and Hutchinson counties.

The flouring mills of J. A. Fant, at Flemingsburg, Ky., were destroyed by fire with a large quantity of wheat and flour in store. The loss is about $15,000; uninsured.

JOHN KENNEDY, a Michigan farmer, was felled out of $900 by three card monte men on the Lake Shore road. Kennedy had taken a carload of hogs to Buffalo and was robbed while returning home.

ROBERT A. STEWART, one of Shelbyville's (Ind.) most worthy citizens, separated from his wife some two weeks ago, and complained for divorce, alleging adultery as his ground for separation.

An agreement has been arrived at between M. de Lesseps and the Government of Great Britain, which provides for a new Suez Canal parallel to the one now in existence, for a reduction of canal dues and for the appointment of an English surveyor of traffic.

Young Preston was rescued from the fire but died a few minutes later. Ayers was an Englishman by birth, is thought to have been insane from the death of his wife about a year ago. Ayers' daughter-in-law kept house for him. Another grandchild lay beside the one shot, but was not harmed by the insane grandchild.

WHITE BURLEY TOBACCO.

How to Cultivate and Raise a Profitable Crop.

A correspondent of the Georgetown (Ky.) Times, writing from Owen county, in a recent issue said: "As the people in your county are interested in tobacco, a few thoughts suggested by practical experience and by the way in which some of our best tobacco planters cultivate and handle the weed, will be given with the hope that they may be of service to some of your readers. We are often told that no two planters will agree upon the same way of cultivating and handling the crop. This may be so to a certain extent in minor details, in some communities. The right method of cultivating the crop is the same with intelligent tobacco raisers everywhere, adopted after careful thought and observation. In the vicinity of Dallasburg and on 'Possum Ridge, in this county, the fine leaf is made a specialty, hence the cultivation varies to some extent with that of other localities where the coarser grades are raised. It is a common rule with all raisers of fine tobacco to top the plant high, from twenty to twenty-four leaves, and set it as close together as possible, three and a half feet by eighteen inches. This is the way Mr. Ben. K. Davis, of Dallas, raised his premium hoghead, which brought $65 per hundred in Cincinnati. On the other hand where the coarser leaf is desired, it is set three and a half feet by two and a half, and topped from fourteen to sixteen leaves.

The soil also affects to some extent the color and texture of the leaf; new ground being better adapted to finer grades than old ground. It is held by many that sugar tree and walnut land will bring only the heavy, dark leaf, but I have before me a sample as fine and as bright as I ever saw raised upon this kind of land in the Greenup Church neighborhood, where any one familiar with the country knows that sugar tree and walnut land predominates. Locust land, in my judgment, will bring as fine tobacco upon fair trial, as any soil. In the neighborhood of Kincaid Station, Scott county, is a body of this kind of land, which, if properly set and cultivated, would bring as fine a grade of tobacco as the soil of any locality.

In cutting, let the leaf get thoroughly ripe, otherwise you lose in both color and weight. Many good crops have been spoiled through the timidity of the planter. As soon as it begins to get a little cool the average farmer gets on a big scare and cuts his tobacco green, forgetting that the damage thus done to the crop is equal, if not greater, than Jack Frost could do, were he to come. To be a successful tobacco raiser requires a deal of courage and great patience. In handling it is better to cut and lay the plant, and then carefully hang after it is wilted, and then haul immediately and put upon the scaffold or in the barn. The tobacco would be brighter could it be put in the house at once, but this would require more room than most men could afford. It is brighter because the dew or rain it may get upon the scaffold darkens the leaf.

In stripping, never mix the grades, but assort carefully, and keep each kind to itself. To assort properly requires judgment and experience, and can't be learned from papers. The tobacco planter ought to keep posted in his hat the motto not to overcrop himself. Two and a half acres to the hand is a good average; and will keep him busy. In common parlance he can "tend at" more, but not properly cultivate it. Unlike other crops, tobacco requires constant attention from the time it is set until it is in the house, and the man who talks of pitching a field of tobacco as lightly as if he were sowing a field of wheat or planting a field of corn, will find out his mistake, and in due time the magnitude of the undertaking.

VENOR'S PREDICTIONS.

What the Canadian Prophet Has to Say About the Weather in July and August.

Country Merchant.

THE STORM PERIODS OF JULY.

1st and 2nd—Wet and stormy in most sections; very high winds.

3rd and 4th—Unsettled, showery, south of lakes and in Middle States; unsettled up to the 7th.

7th and 8th—Sultry and windy; storm clouds.

9th and 10th—Sultry and windy; storm clouds; evenings cool.

11th and 12th—Sultry and windy; storm clouds; evenings cool. About the same up to the 16th or 17th.

17th and 18th—Storms and floods in Kansas and Missouri.

19th and 20th—Very heavy rains and generally sultry weather, with thunder and wind storms through Middle and Northern States.

21st and 22nd—More settled and cooler; frosty in New York State and at points southward.

23rd and 24th—Heat and sultriness; drenches in portions of Pennsylvania and adjacent States.

24th and 25th—Great heat with scattered rain storms and thunder, with hail; hottest part of the month.

27th and 28th—Cooler; storms along the Hudson to New York; heavy rains in Northern sections.

29th to 31st—Cooler for brief period, with pretty general storms at close of month and entry of August; heavy rains and floods at Western points.

AUGUST.

The first week of the month is likely to give heat and some severe local storms where these were experienced last year. Hail should be guarded against in Western sections. I think the fore portion of this month will be characterized by widespread heat. First change to cooler weather after the 10th, when a very decided relapse to cool weather may take place, with even snowfalls in mountainous regions.

To most children the bare suggestion of a dose of castor oil is nauseating. Why not, then, when physic is necessary for the little ones, use Ayer's Cathartic Pills? They combine every essential and valuable principle of a cathartic medicine, and being sugar coated are easily taken.

ALMOST every person has some form of scrofulous poison latent in his veins. When this develops in scrofulous sores, ulcers, or eruptions, or takes the form of rheumatism, or organic diseases, the suffering that ensues is terrible beyond description. Hence the gratitude of those who discover, as thousands yearly do, that Ayer's Sarsaparilla will thoroughly eradicate this evil from the system.

Those who use it will have no other as the difficulties mentioned in other wringers are all avoided in this. The price is $5.50. This firm also has the Champion Iron Wringer, which is an excellent one of the kind and sells for $4. Call and see these wringers before buying elsewhere. j11dly

STRIKES IMMINENT.

The Miners, Glass Workers and Telegraphers.

PITTSBURG, July 11.—A renewal of the railroad coal miners' troubles is feared. Only half the operators have accepted the award of the trade tribunal umpire, fixing the rate of mining at three and one-fourth cents per bushel, and in the other pits work has been continued at the three-cent rate. Those operators who accepted the umpire's decision now want their miners to accept the three-cent rate also, and Hartly & Marshall's two pits shut down because the miners refused to do this. The other pits are expected to shut down also, and it is believed a general strike will be the result.

The window glass workers of North America were in session, but the delegates refuse to give any information concerning what was done or what business will be transacted before final adjournment. It is known, however, and fears are apparent that the action of the convention in this direction will lead to a strike. The manufacturers say that the new tariff has reduced their profits 10 per cent., and that there must be corresponding reduction in wages when work is resumed, which will be the 1st of September. They also say they believe the workmen will follow.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 11.—The green and amber bogie blowers of the Western division, in annual session in this city, have adopted the same schedule of wages that was in force last year. The decision affects bottle factories from Pittsburgh to San Francisco. The men say they will accept no reduction, and think the manufacturers will concede the justice of their claim.

St. Louis, July 11.—The Post-Dispatch announces, on what is considered reliable authority, but which has not yet been verified, that the Brotherhood of Telegraphers will inaugurate a general strike at noon next Monday. It is said there are upwards of 6,000 operators in the Brotherhood, and if they go out the result would hardly be less than a public calamity. It is not known here whether any direct demand has yet been made on the telegraph company, but it is alleged that one will be presented embracing seven hours as a night's work, extra pay for Sunday work, and greater uniformity, if not higher wages. It is also said the Brotherhood is strongly opposed to the introduction of any girls or women in the business.

The telegraph officials here have no definite information regarding the reported movement and evince no disposition to talk about it. The general office of the Brotherhood is at Pittsburgh, and it is understood all orders will be issued from that place.

The Saloon License and Sunday Law in Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 11.—Previous to the decision by the highest tribunal in the State that the Dowling high-license law was applicable to St. Louis, the dram-shop men centered all their resistance and objection to the increased amount of the license. When the judgment of the Court was announced a ready acquiescence to the new law was declared by every saloon-keeper. The disposition to submit to the obvious piece of legislation seemed to be a universal one and found a spontaneous utterance. Of course it was inevitable, and with more or less grace the vendors of spirituous liquors announced their readiness to contribute the extra tax demanded. One clause of the bill, which received only a passing notice while the license feature was the bone of contention, suddenly created consternation among the saloonists. This was the clause which requires the closing of all liquor saloons on Sunday. At first it received no serious consideration, but when prohibitionists and others, who favored the new law, called attention to the effect and provisions of the section set forth in clear and plain language, and that there was not a single technical flaw that would afford a legal evasion, the ire of every saloon-keeper was aroused, and threats are general of retaliation by enforcing absolute Sunday laws against other lines of business. The Saloonkeepers' Association has the matter under advisement.

An Elevated Road for Cincinnati.
Boston, July 11.—At a meeting of the directors of the Toledo, Cincinnati & St. Louis Railway, S. S. Blanchard, R. M. Pomeroy, and W. A. Haskell retired from the board, and the vacancies were filled by the election of the following representatives of the Seney syndicate, which proposes to provide the company with additional capital, C. S. Breese, Samuel Thomas, and H. L. Terrell. Contracts were also approved for an elevated road to connect the Cincinnati terminus with new Postoffice Square.

At Cincinnati, Alfred Lauffer, a soldier belonging to the regiment stationed at Columbus, obtained a furlough two months ago to come to this city, as he was suffering from typhoid fever. He failed in an endeavor to get into the hospital, and this made him so despondent that he jumped from the third story of the house at No. 430 Vine street, hurting himself probably fatally.

Mrs. GERTIE M. GOODLING, aged forty-one years, lived with her husband at No. 219 Freeman avenue, Cincinnati, O. She has recently acted as if partially insane. This morning, before her husband arose from bed, she wrote him a note saying she would never return, left the house, and has not since been seen. Her husband says they have not quarreled, and can not explain the mystery, but believes she jumped in the river and drowned.

Some time ago he was converted to Christianity, and before his death he requested that he be buried with Christian rites, and begged the old chief to dispense with the Indian practices, and especially not to kill his pony at the grave. He was buried as he requested, the missionary, Rev. J. B. Wieks officiating.

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needed for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfillment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction. The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dandruff, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.
